How did the Fund perform last year?

During the past fiscal year ended June 30, 2024, the AdvisorShares Restaurant ETF (ticker: EATZ) achieved a positive return, though it underperformed the S&P 500 Index.

Restaurant and food service operators are facing challenges due to inflation, such as higher labor and food costs, and changing consumer expectations. Technology is being increasingly used to meet these challenges, with applications in marketing, recruiting, accounting, and inventory management. Competition remains intense with a notable decline in high-end categories, requiring restaurants to focus on value, customer experience, marketing, loyalty programs, and operational efficiency to sustain growth and profitability.

We hold an optimistic outlook regarding the future growth prospects of the restaurant industry, particularly as global economic conditions improve, issues related to employment and supply chain stability are resolved, and restaurants leverage new capabilities while continuing to adapt to the ever-shifting consumer landscape.

Total returns are calculated using the daily 4:00pm midpoint between the bid and offer. Shares are bought and sold at market price, not NAV, and are not individually redeemed from the Fund.

The S&P 500 Index is a broad-based, unmanaged measurement of changes in stock market conditions based on the average of 500 widely held common stocks.

Investments involve risk. Principal loss is possible. Redemptions are limited and often commissions are charged on each trade. The Fund may be non-diversified and may be more sensitive to economic, business, political or other changes affecting individual issuers or investments than a diversified fund, which may result in greater fluctuation in the value of the Fund's shares and greater risk of loss. Unlike mutual funds, ETFs may trade at a premium or discount to their net asset value.
