How did the Fund perform last year?

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 2024, the AdvisorShares Vice ETF (ticker: VICE) delivered a modest positive return, underperforming the broader market.

The "vice" sector includes industries such as alcohol, tobacco, restaurants/hospitality, gaming, and gambling. Typically, investments in sectors like alcohol and tobacco are expected to exhibit lower volatility and greater resilience in down markets. However, during the past fiscal year, vice industries worldwide were significantly impacted by inflation, supply chain disruptions, and employment issues.

Looking ahead, we anticipate that VICE will exhibit less volatility compared to the overall market. Certain vice-oriented stocks are expected to experience growth as companies focus on product innovation, market expansion, and adapting to evolving consumer preferences. Our strategy aims to achieve relative outperformance and long-term capital appreciation through effective security selection and successful trading techniques.

* The price used to calculate market return ("Market Price") is determined by using the closing price listed on the exchange included at the beginning of this shareholder report and does not represent returns an investor would receive if shares were traded at other times. Total returns are calculated using the daily 4:00pm midpoint between the bid and offer. Shares are bought and sold at market price, not NAV, and are not individually redeemed from the Fund.

The S&P 500 Index is a broad-based, unmanaged measurement of changes in stock market conditions based on the average of 500 widely held common stocks.

Investments involve risk. Principal loss is possible. Redemptions are limited and often commissions are charged on each trade. The Fund may be non-diversified and may be more sensitive to economic, business, political or other changes affecting individual issuers or investments than a diversified fund, which may result in greater fluctuation in the value of the Fund's shares and greater risk of loss. Unlike mutual funds, ETFs may trade at a premium or discount to their net asset value.
